Chimes will ring through the streets of Stratford shortly with the completion of the town's new $34,000 bell tower.

The tower, which has been on the Stratford Borough Council's plans for many years is being erected in Miranda Street, almost directly opposite the existing clock tower in Broadway.

Work was completed on the tower late last year and the Stratford company, Agnew Construction Ltd, has been preparing for its erection in Miranda Street for the last few weeks.

Once in place, the tower will house five memorial bells, presented to the town in 1924 by residents to commemorate those who gave their lives in World War I. The bells will chime in sequence with the striking of the town clock.

Yesterday the first pre-stressed concrete section was placed in position.
