

Members bid fond farewell to old Egmont St building

"At the going down of the sun" last Friday night members of the New Plymouth RSA said their farewells to the Egmont St building that has been home to them for well over four decades.

Over the weekend a band of volunteers, which included cadets from the City of New Plymouth and 'Air Training Corps units, completed the transferral of furniture, artefacts and chattels to the RSA's new home on Devon St East — the former Te Ara

Lodge and (more recently) The Barracks Restaurant.

The new location promises to be very comfortable and to be able to offer all the necessary facilities to make it a very successful enterprise.

PHOTO: Adrian Malloch.